DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The District of Columbia (Washington, D.C.) is the seat of Government of the United States. As the Capital of the Nation, it is a separate political jurisdiction.

The District has a population of about 740,000—the Nation's ninth largest city.

The 68.25 square-mile area of the District of Columbia lies between Maryland and Virginia. One boundary of the city is the Potomac River at the high water mark on the Virginia shore. The Anacostia River flows through the eastern section of the District to join the Potomac. The city's land boundaries are two Maryland counties—Montgomery and Prince Georges.

Under the U.S. Constitution, Congress has legislative jurisdiction over the District. The city's municipal government operates under authority delegated by Congress.

A new, elected, local government took office January 2, 1975. This home rule government, the city's first in about 100 years, was authorized by legislation signed December 24, 1973, and approved by the citizens in a referendum May 7, 1974.

The new government, which was given strengthened and broadened authority in a number of areas, is headed by an elected mayor and 13-member city council.

In 1790, Congress narrowed the area for the permanent Capital to an 80-mile stretch along the Potomac River. It gave George Washington 10 years to pick the site from land ceded by Maryland and Virginia and to provide the buildings for the Government's move from Philadelphia. The District of Columbia became the Nation's Capital on December 1, 1800.

In 1802, the city of Washington was incorporated under a mayor named by the President and an elected city council. Ten years later, the city's charter was changed to provide for an elected board of aldermen, which along with the council, selected the mayor. In 1820, another change was made to make the mayor elected.

In 1846, the Virginia portion of the District of Columbia site was returned to that State.

The District was given city status June 1, 1871, absorbing the governments of the cities of Washington and Georgetown and the county of Washington. A territorial form of government was established. It was headed by a governor and council, both named by the President, and an elected house of delegates and an elected nonvoting delegate to the House of Representatives.

Congress abolished the territorial government in 1874 and replaced it with a government headed by a three-member Board of Commissioners appointed by the President.

On November 3, 1967, the city government again was reorganized to provide for a commissioner (known popularly as mayor) and nine-member council, all appointed by the President with approval by the Senate.

This reorganized government was replaced by the newly elected mayor-city council government.

Elected mayor was Walter E. Washington, and elected council chairman was Sterling Tucker. Mayor Washington had served as the appointed Mayor-Commissioner under the previous government and Chairman Tucker had served as the council's vice chairman.

District residents, since 1968, also elect their school board members. Under legislation approved in September 1970, voters also elect a nonvoting delegate to the House of Representatives, who has been the Reverend Walter E. Fauntroy.

The Committee shall be composed of one member each from Associated Press Photos, United Press International Newspictures, magazine media, and local newspapers and two "at large" members. At large members may be, but need not be, selected from a media otherwise represented on the Committee.

(b) The term of office of a member of the Committee elected as the Associated Press Photos member, the local newspapers member, or one of the "at large" members shall expire on the day of the election held in the first odd-numbered year following the year in which he was elected, and the term of office of a member of the Committee elected as the United Press International Newspictures member, the magazine media member, or the remaining "at large" member shall expire on the day of the election held in the first even-numbered year following the year in which he was elected, except that a member elected to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of a term shall serve only for the unexpired portion of such term.

Applicants shall state in writing the names of all radio stations, television stations, systems, or news-gathering organizations by which they are employed and what other occupation or employment they may have, if any. Applicants shall further declare that they are not engaged in the prosecution of claims or the promotion of legislation pending before Congress, the Departments, or the independent agencies, and that they will not become so employed without resigning from the galleries. They shall further declare that they are not employed in any legislative or executive department or independent agency of the Government, or by any foreign government or representative thereof; that they are not engaged in any lobbying activities; that they do not and will

Holders of visitor's cards who may be allowed temporary admission to the galleries must conform to the restrictions of this rule.

2. The applications required by rule 1 shall be authenticated in a manner that shall be satisfactory to the executive committee of the Periodical Correspondents' Gallery who shall see that the occupation of the galleries is confined to bona fide and accredited resident correspondents, newsgatherers, or reporters of reputable standing who represent one or more periodicals which regularly publish a substantial volume of news material of either general or of an economic, industrial, technical or trade character, published for profit and supported chiefly by advertising or by subscription, and owned and operated independently of any industry, business, association, or institution; and it shall be the duty of the executive
